Conferences, Symposia, and Events

To encourage continued study of all aspects of America's Vietnam experience, the Vietnam Center has developed an active program of conferences and symposia. Through these annual conferences and symposia, the Vietnam Center has brought together scholars, diplomats, statesmen, military professionals and veterans to discuss, debate and further understand the complex events that shaped the American experience in Southeast Asia. Past participants and speakers at these events include the Vietnam Center's former National Advisory Council Chairman Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, Jr.; former CIA Director William E. Colby; Ambassador Douglas "Pete" Peterson; former South Vietnamese Prime Minister General Nguyen Khanh; Peoples Army of Vietnam Lieutenant General Nguyen Dinh Uoc; General William B. Rosson, US Army (retired); noted journalist Peter Braestrup and many others.

Upcoming Events

In addition to annual conferences, the Vietnam Center and Archive hosts a range of other events throughout the year, ranging from guest lectures to banquets to our annual Vietnamese New Year (Tet) celebration.

THE VIETNAM CENTER AND ARCHIVE CELEBRATES BLACK HISTORY MONTH

With the desegregation of the American military during the Korean War, military careers became increasingly attractive to the African American community in the early 1960's. The military offered young men and women employment, education, training and for African Americans a chance to achieve one's goals in an environment that was more tolerant than the still segregated civilian arena. As the Vietnam War continued, racial issues in Southeast Asia and the military began to mirror the Civil Rights movement back home; with both groups struggling for equality and respect. Many African American soldiers began questioning the need to fight for the freedom of a country halfway around the world when they were not fully free themselves back home in the United States. By the end of the war both African American and white soldiers were disenchanted with their service in a war that was rapidly losing popularity with the American people. Despite the issues and hurdles faced by African American soldiers, these young men played a key role in Vietnam: serving their country in a time of war. The Vietnam Center and Archive wishes to honor the African American infantryman, medic, pilot, sailor, marine, nurse and soldier for Black History Month.

Spotlight on African Americans in the War

Sergeant Stanley C. Goff

Sergeant Stanley C. Goff presented award by Brigadier General John Freund (circa-1967)

Stanley C. Goff grew up in Tyler, Texas and moved to San Francisco, California in 1966. After deciding that college was not for him, he was drafted into the Army in January of 1968. Goff was part of the 196th Light Infantry Brigade Bravo (B) Company operating in the I Corps Tactical Zone throughout northern Vietnam. After four months in combat, Goff earned the Distinguished Service Cross (DSC) medal for bravery under fire in 1969. Prior to receiving his DSC medal, Goff also served as the brigade bugler for LZ Baldy, also known as Baldy Airfield, near Huong An, Vietnam. Despite experiencing heavy combat in the jungles of Vietnam during his tour of duty, Goff returned to the US unscathed in 1969. Goff later co-wrote Brothers: Black Soldiers in the Nam (LC Call # DS559.5 G63) with Robert Sanders and Clark Smith.

THE TET OFFENSIVE

The Tet Offensive (Tết Mậu Thân)

During the early morning hours of 31 January 1968, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces launched surprise assaults on nearly all of the provincial capitals and urban areas of the Republic of Vietnam in an effort to bring about the collapse of the South Vietnamese government. The attack, which came to be known as the Tet Offensive, became a major turning point in the war, setting the stage for American withdrawal and the eventual downfall of South Vietnam. Militarily, the Tet Offensive was a major defeat for the communists, but politically it became a stunning victory as the American will to fight the war began to wane.

In the months leading up to the Tet Offensive, the Vietnam War had reached a point of stalemate. Main force American units had been fighting in Vietnam for over two and half years, and the insurgency in South Vietnam showed no signs of slowing, despite the fact that American firepower had taken a major toll on the Viet Cong's ranks. Since the fighting in Vietnam began, the communists had been willing to absorb massive numbers of casualties, but clashes with the Americans were beginning to sap the strength of the Viet Cong, and the communist leadership began to fear that continued losses would limit their ability to strike at American and South Vietnamese forces. Thus, in January of 1968, Hanoi elected to cast aside its strategy of protracted warfare and gambled everything on a massive surprise attack on the major urban areas of the Republic of Vietnam. Their strategy, known as General Offensive and Uprising (Cuộc Tổng tiến công và nổi dậy) was to strike American and South Vietnamese military and government installations and trigger a general uprising among the population that would topple the South Vietnamese government and expel the Americans. The planned communist offensive was to take place during the Vietnamese holiday of Tet, the Vietnamese lunar new year. In the previous years of the conflict belligerents on both sides observed a cease fire during the Tet holiday. By taking advantage of the proposed cease fire, the communists hoped to maximize the advantage of surprise by striking during a time of supposed peace.

09 DEC while running fixed wing preparation fires on Hill 850 (4D 049287), aircraft received .50 cal fire from YD 037244. An artillery mission was fired on the grid and then fixed wing ran airstrikes resulting in a secondary explosion equal to 50 - 100 82mm mortar rounds. At 1000 at YD 097236 Company D discovered one M-47 casing from the previous night's contact. At 1020 at YD 084240 Company C found 2 old fighting holes covered with vines and branches and not used recently. At 1050 at YD 037203 Company C found 2 Montagnard huts with 2 anti-tank mines with fuzes (U.S. made), two 50 round magazines similar to the Thompson magazines, 100 rounds of small arms ammunition, 40 lbs of TNT(NVA type), food peppers, spices, 1 NVA canteen, 1 hand tool, and one spear. At 1215 an AO adjusted an artillery mission and observed a secondary explosion, but the grid is not available because the AO checked off the radio frequency without reporting it. At 1310 at YD 031287 an AO observed a small secondary explosion from an artillery mission. At 1300 at YD 086234 Company D found a trail wide enough for 1 person. At 1115 at LA FISHER (YD 037287) a CH-46, after dropping one heliteam, took fire. The heliteam was picked up a few minutes later and returned to its original position. At 1430 at YD 068249 Company A found 1000 lbs of rice and 60 lbs of corn packaged in grass baskets in 2 huts. At 1655 at YD 096231 Company D found a trail running east and west with fresh tennis shoe prints of 3-4 persons heading towards company D's lines.

10 DEC at 1050 at YD 096262 a Company B patrol called for a pre-planned 60mm mortar mission that fell short and caused 4 WIA's in the patrol. At 1740 at YD 098257 Company B observed 2 persons wearing tan clothing watching the companies perimeter. An artillery mission was fired with negative results.
