DUSTOFF ASSOCIATION

APRIL 1990

11th ANNUAL REUNION ATTENDEES

PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE

The 11th Annual Reunion is testimony to the growing interest and fellowship that continues throughout the association. Thanks to Glen Melton and a multitude of volunteers and folks who helped orchestrate one of the most successful reunions ever. The dates for our next reunion have already been set as well as the location. It promises to be the largest ever turnout! The Executive Council has selected “Great Americans” as the theme and this will be the theme for the association throughout the year. If you know a “Great American” be sure to bring them along and make plans for next year’s reunion. Our guest speaker will guarantee standing room only and our location has guaranteed seating for only 600 people.

Many of the initiatives started by Glen Melton and suggested by the membership will be the focus of this year’s slate of new officers. Jim Truscott, Bill Thresher, Rick Prouty, and the members-at-large are committed to the association goals.

We have included in this newsletter a copy of the DUSTOFF Association Constitution at the request of the membership. In reviewing the articles of the constitution and the association goals, we can well appreciate the contributions the association has made and will continue to make in furthering aeromedical evacuation initiatives.

The articles and notes included in this newsletter are representative of a cross section of the membership. We have included a self-addressed envelope to encourage the members to continue submitting items of interest, comments and ideas to be shared with our growing membership. Our thanks to the many who submitted these articles.

An application for membership to your association would be appreciated! My 2 years (and continuing) at the 36th MED DET (AA) here with Ft. Polk have been the best of my Army career. As a medic, FLIGHT MEDICS are the Best! I want to keep in touch with the people I’ve had the pleasure of working with.

Thank You,

Todd T. Fauchier
SGT, USA

I received my DUSTOFF Membership Directory in the mail today. It is a fine piece of work. It represents a lot of thought and work on the part of all who were involved in putting it together. The size is just right.

I would like to make a couple of constructive comments. On the inside front cover is a comprehensive and well written concise history of our DUSTOFF Association. I commend the author for an excellent treatise.

In paragraph 5, line 4 states that “Throughout Vietnam all evacuation helicopters assumed the call sign ‘DUSTOFF’. It is my memory that Aeromedical Evacuation platoon of the 1st CAV Division used the call sign ‘MEDEVAC.’” (In reference to a print that Luis Carranza did of Vietnam DUSTOFF units, Colonel Williams writes...) As I looked at it I remembered all the places I had been and all the DUSTOFF crews, many of whom were just out of school. Many were seen going about their daily tasks as if heroism was the order of the day and just a routine matter. Those are the memories of an old soldier whose greatest pride is that he was able to serve with the officers, warrant officers and men who made DUSTOFF what it was then and is today.

I will be sending you a check later on in the year so I can become a LIFETIME member. I’ve been flying for five years with MEDEVAC and should have joined a long time ago.

If you would please send me more information on the DUSTOFF ASSOCIATION, price list of patches, stickers, and other items along that line. Thank you for your assistance.

We bought the weekend edition of “U.S.A. Today" on Sunday and noticed the “DUSTOFF Reunion" in the classified.

My husband, Bruce W. Stearns, served with the, 57th Med. Detachment, Helicopter Ambulances, as a crew chief, from Aug. ’65 to Sept. ’66.

Even if the reunion is over, could you forward any papers, names, etc. and inform him of any other reunions.

We hope it was a success!

Carol Stearns

I want to express to each one of you my sincerest and deepest appreciation for everything you did for me at the DUSTOFF Association Banquet — for making me an honorary life member of the DUSTOFF Association, the beautiful letter from the Surgeon General, and all the kind words said about me.

That night, seeing all of you, my husband, Bruce W. Stearns, and so many good friends for so many years, and receiving all the recognition and honors, was far beyond what I expected. I was overwhelmed! You made my job rewarding through the years, and I hope, in some small measure, I was able to be of help to each one of you and your families. It was always a pleasure for me.

The site of a helicopter ambulance detachment is unpretentious; it consists of a “parking lot” about 40 yards square, a mechanics’ tent, and several squad tents for living quarters. That’s about it! A group of four such sites, plus the pilots, mechanics, and the bubble-nosed helicopters, make up a unique “lifesaver” organization in Korea—the 1st Helicopter Ambulance Company.

Organized in Korea in January, 1951, the company’s mission has been to accomplish the front-line evacuation of critically wounded U. N. troops. Despite its being plagued by shortages of pilots and spare parts, the 1st Helicopter Ambulance Company’s achievements in 30 months of operations are notable. Over 16,000 casualties have been carried by the unit, this figure including both front-line and “rearward” evacuation. In addition, four H-13’s of the company’s 50th detachment carried the first litter cases of repatriated prisoners during the recent historic operations. Following the armistice, such evacuation has continued.

The 1st Helicopter Ambulance Company, however, is not the only evacuating unit. It has several “big brothers”—among them the Sixth and Thirteenth Transportation Helicopter Companies—which aid in a good portion of what is called the “rearward” evacuation, or evacuation from the forward hospitals to the Seoul area and Inchon.

Previous to June 1, 1953, the company worked under the operational control of an Eighth Army surgeon and was assigned to the Surgical Hospitals (Mobile Army), formerly designated MASH. Although the provisional company was provided for at the same time the detachments were activated in Korea in 1951, it was not officially formed until recently. On June 1, Capt. Earl L. Russell, Jr., a veteran of 13 years of flying, took over the reins and the loose-jointed, widely-separated detachments of the company came under one wing. Tactical, logistical, and administrative control became centered in company headquarters and the unit was assigned to the 30th Medical Group, located near the new Yongsan Project. Four detachments in operation now—the 49th, 50th, 52nd, and 37th—were to be supplemented by a badly-needed fifth segment just prior to the armistice.

A typical detachment, the 49th, is stationed with the 44th Surgical Hospital and, under the command of Capt. John W. Hammett, has carried more casualties than any other detachment.

A 49th pilot, Capt. William P. Brake, of San Antonio, Tex., is credited with the individual record of 900 patients air-ferryed in one tour of duty. He thus surpassed the record of 824 set earlier by Capt. Joseph Bowler, of Schuylkill Haven, Pa.

Capt. Hammett’s outfit consists of four pilots and 15 enlisted mechanics and clerks. Of four H-13’s, three are kept operating while one is usually kept deadlined for checking and repair. Helicopters need twice the maintenance and care of that given a light aircraft like the L-10, according to Capt. Hammett.

At the height of the Korean fighting, the 49th had 175 active pickup points and another 125 inactive front-line landing spots. A pickup point might be a battalion aid station or a company aid station. These areas are selected by the company or battalion supported, but the pilot has the final say before the spot is selected and mapped. The front-line area covered by the 49th varied from 30 to 60 miles, depending on the location of fighting and availability of the sensitive H-13’s. Pickup points were scattered throughout the area. During the actual hostilities, the rescue helicopters were open to small arms fire at about 15% of the sites, and 70% of the points were within range of artillery and mortar fire, according to Capt. Hammett.

The bitter fighting over “Outpost Harry” in June was among the heaviest single actions in which the 49th engaged. “We were going in and out as fast as we could unload. At the 44th (Surgical Hospital), aid men started unloading casualties as soon as the copter landed, and a mechanic was there to gas it up while the blades were still moving,” states Hammett. “We were down and gone again in a minute flat.”

Another detachment, the 50th, flying for the 43rd Surgical Hospital, went into high gear for three days on the heels of the Chinese offensive in the vicinity of Kumuh. The totals of casualties were
HELIQUARTER MEDICAL EVACUATION UNITS IN VIETNAM
Cecil B. Smyth, Jr.

The U. S. Army’s aeromedical evacuation operation in Vietnam is referred to as MEDEVAC or DUSTOFF. Whatever the name, the heroic efforts of members of these units saved many a life during the 11 years, 1962 to 1973, they served in Vietnam. A MEDEVAC pilot, with his crew of three, would put his chopper down almost anywhere to try to save a life—a soldier, civilian, friend or enemy, and even canines of the Army’s scout dog and tracker units. Weather, terrain and hostile fire were the combined enemies of the MEDEVAC Crew. Nevertheless, these units accomplished their mission of saving lives while suffering heavy casualties and loss of aircraft. Perhaps the job they did is best explained in this poem written by SP4 Harry Miller of the Air Ambulance Platoon, 326th Medical Battalion, 101st Airborne Division. DUSTOFF 98 was the call sign of the Platoon Commander.

DUSTOFF "98"

Gather 'round my children, it's getting late. I'll tell you the story of Dustoff "98". "Eagle Dustoff" is our name, the work we do is not for fame. A mission of mercy we're on this night Another GI fell in the fight. Oh, we're flying fast and we're flying high, to get the man out so he won't die. The left is ready and so is the right The pick-up zone is going to be tight. On the radio now I hear the pilot say, To the man on the ground as they light the way, "We're your bird and Dustoff crew That's inbound now with help for you. We've no guns aboard but we'll take a chance Behind our Red Cross we take our stance Maybe we'll live and maybe we'll die but you know for sure we'll certainly try."

From EAGLE DUSTOFF, July-September 1970, a publication of the Air Ambulance Platoon, 326th Medical Battalion.

ORIGIN OF THE DUSTOFF CALL SIGN

The 57th Medical Detachment (Helicopter Ambulance) was the first air ambulance unit in Vietnam. It arrived in April 1962 and remained for 11 years. The unit’s first call sign was “Army” plus the tail number of the aircraft transmitted on any vacant radio frequency it could find. This was highly unsatisfactory and in 1963 the detachment commander visited the Naval Support Activity which controlled all call words in Vietnam. Reviewing the Signal Operations Instructions which listed all the unused call words he found Dustoff. This epitomized the 57th’s medical evacuation missions since the countryside was dry and dusty much of the year. Oftentimes helicopter pickups blew dust, dirt, blankets and shelter halves all over the men on the ground. By adopting Dustoff, the commander selected a name for aeromedical evacuation that is still used.

MEMORY OF KELLY, ‘DUSTOFF’ PIONEER, LIVES FOR MED UNIT

DOUGLAS E. MOORE

Time; the great healer, marches on almost imperceptibly until one day something happens that causes us to think back across the years and then we realize just how quickly they have slipped away. With the passage of time, names and faces are forgotten or are placed in the far reaches of our minds—sometimes to never be recalled again.

It’s a shame that many of the men and women who performed great deeds and who are responsible for the things that we have today are forgotten so easily. I was reminded of how quickly we forget a few days ago while walking through the orderly room of the 54th Medical Detachment (Helicopter Ambulance) here and noticed an old magazine article and picture of Major Charles L. Kelly hanging on the wall.

Chuck was a former commander of the 54th and a living legend in his time, but when I asked one of the young pilots about him, it was evident that he knew little of this great man and his heroic career.

Chuck Kelly was a small man, no taller than five feet seven inches, with a tough, little guy personality that covered a heart of gold. He was one of the few men who won all four badges that really count—airborne wings, aviator’s wings, combat infantryman’s badge and the combat medical badge.

Enlisted at 16

In 1941, a few days before he reached his 16th birthday, Chuck joined the Army and served as an enlisted man with the 30th Infantry Division. Following WWII, he entered college and earned his master’s degree before accepting an Army commission in 1951.

His first assignment as an officer was with the 11th Airborne Division, but Chuck became intrigued with the helicopters that were being introduced into the Korean Conflict and was convinced of their utility as a medical evacuation vehicle. He had seen too many of his comrades die and felt that the wounded could be lifted directly from the combat zone to sophisticated medical care.

In 1954, he went to flight school and earned his aviator wings.

Although he was not one of the first guys in Vietnam, Chuck Kelly set the pace for all who followed. At the age of 39, he went to Vietnam in 1964 to command the only medical helicopter detachment in the country at that time.

The war was very different in those early days compared to that which most Americans experienced in later years. For instance, there were only about 15,000 American soldiers stationed there as compared to the half million or so who were there in the 68-69 time frame.

Most Americans found themselves assigned to small Special Forces or Advisory Teams scattered the length and breadth of South Vietnam. The helicopter units were stretched beyond their capacity trying to support these teams. Chuck’s unit, as an example, was headquartered in Saigon, but he kept part of his five helicopters in Pleiku and Quin Nhon. Later, as the complexity of the war changed, he closed out in the north and moved those assets to the delta at Soc Trang.

No ‘yes man’, Kelly!

Chuck Kelly was a testy little guy who was constantly at odds with someone in the old US Army Support Command, the forerunner of USAV. On occasion, there were strained moments between Kelly and Brig. Gen. Joe Stillwell, the Support Command commander. They were both no-nonsense, hard-charging, and sometimes headstrong individuals and later were to suffer untimely deaths not far apart.

Over time, they developed a mutual respect for one another that gave Chuck almost free rein and as a result, Chuck could get away with things that the other guys couldn’t.

One day following an argument with a member of the Support Command staff, Chuck angrily packed his bags and moved his headquarters from Saigon to Soc Trang so that he could operate with less interference. Chuck was obsessed with saving lives and felt that medevac helicopters offered the ideal tool. He wasn’t without considerable opposition though. There were disclaimers who felt that the scarce helicopter resources shouldn’t be allocated so that some were used solely for medical evacuation purposes.

Instead, they argued that medevac was a mission that all aviation units shared; therefore, purely medical evacuation units were not needed. Chuck set out to disprove that argument and his actions caused many folks to regard him as a fanatic or perhaps “crazy.”

Who’s afraid of the dark?

In those early days of the Vietnam War, helicopter operations essentially came to a close at nightfall even though the Viet Cong used the cover of darkness to attack isolated villages and outposts.

About the only regular night air traffic were the old Air Force C-47 “Gooneybirds” that made the rounds dropping flares for those who came under attack. Chuck changed all that for the medevac guys. Every night, he dispatched a crew to fly prescribed routes over the Vietnam Delta and had them call each of the Special Forces and Advisory Team camps as they passed by.

After a while, he told everyone that night was no longer a barrier and he proved it himself.

Chuck was always willing, at any hour, to jump into a “B” model Huey and go roaring across the jungles or delta where navigational aids were nonexistent except for a pair of old relays, the US Air Force radar sets at Saigon and Can Tho, known as Paris and Paddy Controls, respectively.

Chuck was even called a “madman” by some, but certainly he was no “madman” to the lonely Americans scattered across the countryside. Many a night an isolated American advisor would hear a Huey clattering through the blackened skies and would tune up the medevac frequency and call for help or merely say hello to Chuck or one of his pilots.

After a while, other units began routinely to fly at night, especially the gunships. It became commonplace to hear a Zulu, Viking, Playboy, or Raider gunship pilot telling Paris or Paddy Control that they were going out to help someone in distress.

‘Dustoff’ was his callsign

Chuck was responsible for saving the “Dustoff” callsign that is associated with the medevac helicopter. Ordinarily, callsigns and frequencies were changed periodically, and for good military reasons. The callsign “Dustoff” was simply of those selected for the unit and when it came time to change.

Chuck Kelly demanded that the callsign remain standard so that in the heart of battle American advisors wouldn’t have to search through a codebook to find the correct callsign and frequency only to find that they didn’t have the latest change.

Chuck won the battle and the callsign and frequency remained the same for the duration of the war. Although many of the older medevac pilots can recall times when the Viet Cong came upon the frequency and talked to us, there was never any serious trouble because it was not changed. Many medevac units use the same callsign today, some without having any knowledge of its origin.

As mentioned before, Chuck was always in a running battle with someone over rules that he considered to be out of step with reality. When a staffer in the Support Command placed a monthly flying hour limit on pilots that he felt was arbitrary and too low, Chuck dashed off to Saigon and came back with an exception to policy. He was not going to let someone die because he couldn’t fly.

Keep those crosses

He also became embroiled in a controversy over the painting of red crosses on the medevac ships. Not many active duty people can still remember when the Huey resources in Vietnam were scarce, but in the early days, most of the Hueys were either in the gunship units or in Chuck’s medevac detachment.

Old H-21 “Flying Bananas” flown by Americans and H-34’s flown by the Vietnamese Air Force were the primary troop lift ships. Because of this, a recommendation was made to Gen. Stillwell that Chuck be required to remove the red crosses from his aircraft and use some sort of portable red cross instead. Then when another unit needed additional Hueys, Chuck’s aircraft would be transferred to them quickly. But was that the real reason? Or was it another attempt to do away with dedicated medevac helicopters? Whatever the reason, the battle was waged for a long time and wasn’t settled until an incident occurred in the summer of 1964. It’s reported that not long before Gen. Stillwell left Vietnam, he told Chuck, “Kelly, I will have your aircraft soon. The Surgeon General is a personal friend of mine.”

Chuck allegedly responded, “He may be a friend of yours, General, but he ain’t no damn fool!” A few days later at Gen. Stillwell’s going away party, Chuck presented him with a plaque on which were mounted five miniature red crosses representing the number of helicopters in the medevac detachment.

“You always wanted my red crosses, General. Well, here they are!” Chuck wryly commented. A few days later, the argument was settled forever.

‘Rescue is our job’

As the war in the delta heated up, Chuck’s unit became more and more busy, and flying through a hail of lead to rescue the wounded became commonplace. When anyone would suggest that he was crazy to risk his life rescuing wounded South Vietnamese when their own pilots refused to do so, Chuck always dismissed the comments with, “That’s our job. Anyone who needs help.”

Even with his tough exterior, Chuck was a kind man and he could really get wound up when he had to go out and evacuate dead and dying women and children following one of the Viet Cong’s ruthless attacks on a village. Chuck truly cared for the little people of Vietnam.

As his reputation grew, Chuck attracted the attention of Jim Lucas, the Pulitzer prize winning reporter, who spent a lot of time in Vietnam. Lucas’ book, Dateline Vietnam is an unforgettable collection of his dispatches over a two year period and many of the earlier dispatches talked about Chuck. Over time, they became close friends even though Chuck complained that he didn’t write enough about his soldiers.

Lucas commented in his book, “The only time Kelly and I had words was when — after my third story — he complained that I wrote about him too much and not enough about his boys. I told him his boys wanted it that way. He shouted back that he was their commanding officer and he’d put a stop to that. I kept writing about Kelly and no one but the man himself ever complained.”

Luck ran out

Who would have ever thought that Chuck wasn’t immortal? After all, he had spent years at war and during this particular conflict, he had limped home several times with a bullet torn helicopter, yet remained unscathed. Chuck died one day, though — doing what he loved best.

An American Advisor called after a South Vietnamese unit had been chewed up badly. The unit was still in contact when Chuck arrived. As he had done hundreds of times before, he flew straight to the marker smoke and kicked the tail of the Huey around towards the enemy and used the bulk of the aircraft to protect the area where the wounded were located.

The snap-snap-snap of rifle fire began as Chuck hovered about the rice paddy. Finally, the American Advisor shouted over the radio, “Get out Dustoff! Get out!”

“Not until I have your wounded,” Chuck replied.

Then it happened. A single round came through the rear of the aircraft, barely missed his seat frame and hit Chuck in the chest. Chuck Kelly slumped over the controls and despite the copilot’s best efforts, the Huey rolled over in the rice paddy and flipped itself to pieces. All except Chuck and the Huey survived.

149th GI to die in ’Nam

So the living legend died on July 1, 1964, in that Godforsaken rice paddy, 13,000 miles from home. The news of his death spread quickly and even tough, old Gen. Stillwell wept when he was told. He was the 149th American to die in Vietnam. He left us a great legacy.

The reputation he had built, followed by his untimely death, closed any further discussion as to whether dedicated medevac helicopters were needed. No one dared to raise the issue again. He left us a call sign that endures and his words, “Not until I have your wounded,” were the inspiration for all the medevac pilots and crewmen who followed.

Before that long war came to a close, more than million Americans, Aussies, New-Zealanders, Thais, South Koreans, Philippines, South Vietnamese soldiers were sped to sophisticated medical care by medevac helicopters. Many of the wounded would have died had it not been for this great man.

It’s a shame then, that as time goes marching on, his memory becomes dimmer among the older guys and most of the newer pilots haven’t even heard of him. I suppose we older guys have a responsibility to keep our unit histories alive so that the newcomers can share our pride and learn from the high standards set by those who have gone on before.

Jim Lucas, with heavy heart, wrote this news dispatch upon learning of Chuck’s death, “The Viet Cong, as everybody in the Mekong Delta knew they would some day, finally got ‘Crazy’ Kelly this week. Major Charles Kelly was a professional soldier and a good one who never hurt anybody in his life. He only wanted to help them. The conviction that he should — and could — finally cost him his life.

Twenty-four hours after he set up shop in the Delta, Kelly had become a legend. We called him ‘Crazy’, or sometimes it was ‘Mad-man’, but we said it with affection. Kelly did things the bravest of the others wouldn’t think of trying. So did the handful of youngsters who flew with him and gave him their full devotion. Knowing how much they loved the ‘Old Man’, I’m glad I’m not in Soc Trang today.

Why?

Ironically, a few weeks before Chuck died, his 11-year-old daughter wrote the following poem and sent it to him. It — perhaps — says all there is to say.

_In Vietnam_

_A cold war rages_
_Soldiers fight_
_For very small wages_
_Men fight_
_Women cry_
_And day and night_
_More people die._

Why?

_I don’t know why_
_I never will know why_
_Men have to die_
_On the battlefield._

I don’t know why men have to die either. I also don’t know why we have to forget so soon. After all, it’s only been just over 16 years since Chuck Kelly died — on the battlefield.
REUNION NOTES

For some members, the 11th Annual Reunion began Friday morning with Major General Pat Brady speaking at the Academy of Health Sciences, Fort Sam Houston. Prior to his presentation, a television documentary produced by ABC, entitled “Heroes” was shown to a standing room only crowd. This documentary is one of a series being shown on national television about Medal of Honor recipients. Major General Brady, now Chief Public Affairs for the United States Army, was the focus of the documentary. The series relives the lives of Medal of Honor recipients. This particular segment focuses on the DUSTOFF story and is one of the most concise and thorough segments depicting the mission of the DUSTOFF flight crewmember and the dedication that the DUSTOFF crews had when it came time to rescue some 900,000 fellow soldiers during the Vietnam conflict.

• The annual Chuck Mateer golf classic on Friday afternoon included numerous issues, initiatives and suggestions from the membership. Mike Toennis scholarship program for the membership received the most support. This program will be a featured presentation in our next newsletter. Thanks to efforts of Nancy Mahoney from the museum staff, and a DUSTOFF member, the DUSTOFF museum exhibit will be enhanced considerably over the next year. The Association will be providing three new bronze plated plaques that will detail the story, history and listing of lives lost in serving as a DUSTOFF crewmember. Joe Miller, assigned to our DUSTOFF unit in Korea is assisting in this endeavor. Other interesting areas of discussion included membership drives, advertisement and suggestions for newsletter input.

• 236th Medical Detachment, Augsburg, Germany is commended for the most dedicated flight crews who demonstrated a high degree of professional skill while actually recovering an aircraft from an inflight failure or malfunction necessitating an emergency landing. CW3 Mundi’s successful autorotation resulting from an engine failure qualified him for the coveted award.

• 24th Medical Company, DUSTOFF crewmembers with the Nebraska Army National Guard were recognized for a heroic cold Friday night rescue of a stranded hunter near Camp Ashland. Congratulations to CW4 Decker, CW2 Shepherd, SGT Shuck, SGT Fannon and SFC Baker.

• 236th Medical Detachment, Augsburg, Germany is commended for the most members joining the Association of any unit in 1989.

• Did you know DUSTOFF comes in a can? Seems “Edmund Scientific Catalog for the Technical Hobbyist” sells an aerosol freon spray that cleans away carbon products from laboratory, electronic and photographic equipment. Don’t ask, we are working on it.

SPECIAL NOTE:

Units or organizations that recruit 20 or more new members will receive a framed and numbered print of Luis Carranza’s DUSTOFF “When I have your wounded” for display. This artwork stirred great interest among the membership when displayed at this year’s reunion.

In February 1970, the 61st Medical Battalion was redesignated the 61st Medical Evacuation Battalion and was relocated to Qui Nhon with the mission of controlling all nondivisional ambulances in the northern half of the RVN. The 61st had six helicopter ambulance detachments. To the right is a pocket patch of the Dustoff detachments featuring the 61st Medical Battalion DI with VIETNAM and DUSTOFF added.

The 61st Med Evac Bn proved successful and on 1 May 1970 the 58th Medical Battalion became the 58th Medical Evacuation Battalion with Headquarters at Long Binh. Its mission was to provide coverage for southern MR-2 and MR's 3 and 4. On 10 June 1971 both units were disbanded as standdowns had reduced U.S. forces in Vietnam to the point where medical evacuation battalions were no longer needed.

Air Ambulance Platoon,
326th Med Bn
Finally, due to the grace of God and the US postal system, our unit patches arrived. And it was about time. What we got was 170 brightly colored patches for wear on the right shirt pocket. They're circular, with a red cross against a white background, bounded by a maroon ring, and on the face of the cross is a green, MEDEVAC helicopter. The words Air Amb Plt. are on top of the patch and 326th Med Bn is on the bottom. EAGLE DUSTOFF, March 1969.
CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE I

NAME

This Association shall be known as the "DUSTOFF Association." It is a fraternal Organization for all officers and enlisted Army Medical Department personnel, aviation crew members and others who are or have been engaged in or have actively supported in any capacity the Army aeromedical evacuation programs in war or peace.

ARTICLE II

OBJECTIVES

The objectives of the DUSTOFF Association are to advance the knowledge of aeromedical evacuation techniques and to enhance future endeavors whether they be military or civilian. These objectives will be accomplished through annual meetings, active coordination with mutual associations and consideration by the membership of essential matters pertaining to the enhancement of aeromedical concepts during war and peace. The DUSTOFF Association is dedicated to the fulfillment of the following purposes:

- Improve aeromedical evacuation techniques by providing a forum for discussion of common ideas and problems, whether military or civilian related.
- Contribute to the improvement of health care in the Army through policy evaluation and the development of appropriate recommendations.
- Represent the DUSTOFF Association in national professional organizations, Federal Government offices and to the public as an organization dedicated to the improvement of emergency medical treatment.
- Promote public awareness of the role of the helicopter in its vital lifesaving mission.
- Provide an opportunity for continuing education of its members.
- Improve the effectiveness, cohesiveness, esprit de corps and traditions of valor of the Army Aeromedical Evacuation Crewmembers.

ARTICLE III

MEMBERS

Section I. Membership is open to all officers and enlisted Army Medical Department personnel, aviation crewmembers and others who are or have been engaged in or have actively supported in any capacity Army aeromedical evacuation programs in war or peace.

1. The Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Members-at-Large shall be elected by a majority vote of those members present and voting at the annual business meeting.

2. The Vice-President of the Association shall be the President-elect and shall succeed to the Presidency at the close of the next annual meeting of the Association.

3. Members-at-Large are elected for a two-year term. One Member-at-Large shall come from the retired military community.

CHAPTER 4

ANNUAL AND SPECIAL MEETINGS

1. There shall be an annual meeting of the Association as determined by the Executive Council. The Council shall announce the date and place selected not later than six (6) months prior to the annual meeting.

2. Special meetings of the Association may be called by the Executive Council after thirty (30) days advance notice to the membership. The notice shall state the reason for calling the special meeting.

3. In the event of a national emergency, the Executive Council shall have the authority to cancel or postpone annual meetings.

CHAPTER 5

DUTIES OF OFFICERS

1. The President shall preside at meetings of the Association and the Executive Council.

2. In the absence of the President or because of his inability to act, his duties will succeed, in order, to the Vice-President, Executive Director, or to another member of the Executive Council selected by it. Such successors will act for the President and sign appropriate official documents.

3. Following their installation at the close of the annual meeting, the elected officers of the Association shall serve for the term of office in which they are elected. The duties of the officers shall be those which are customarily ordained for such office and such other functions as may be prescribed by the President and these Bylaws.

4. The Secretary and Treasurer shall be responsible for all membership and fiscal matters of the Association.

CHAPTER 6

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

1. The Executive Council shall exercise supervision over the affairs of the Association and shall report to the membership at the annual meeting. The Council will meet periodically upon the call of the President.

2. A majority of the Executive Council shall constitute a quorum. Members of the Executive Council may vote in person, by mail or telephone.

3. Attendance of persons other than Council members at Council meetings shall be with the concurrence of the presiding officer.
