Dear Dorothie,

The mail is being screwed up now. I got your letter 193 today after having received one for two days, but I have not yet gotten 192.

Enclosed is a clipping by my favorite columnist. Anyhow, it is too close to home to pass up. You should have seen the entire group of people and I had to go through with our computer calculations and make the February enemy strength calculations come out the way the general wanted them to. We started with the answer and plugged in all sorts of figures until we found a combination the machine could digest, and then we wrote all sorts of estimates showing only... the figures were right which we had had to use. And we continue to win the war.

It is getting hotter and hotter here. The air conditioning is still out and we are really sweltering at night.

I can't remember whether or not I told you about the swimming pool. They cleaned it over a week ago for cleaning, cleaned it and started to fill it up. For 4 days now, they have been trying to fill it up but can't do it. This is so typical of everything that happens here. Water pours in but nothing happens.

Two of us were watching at last change. Two of us were watching at least change. Two of us were watching at least change. Two of us were watching at least change. Two of us were watching at least change.

...
out faster than it was coming in. Very perturbing. I may have told you this, but it has had a really profound effect on me — no typical of this whole endeavor. "Great" planning-execution by idiot Vietnam, and finally, 160 by the U.S. Army. And the next day the same thing nothing has

A couple of war pictures tonight. One of the main gate of Tan Son Nhut blocked up by huge crane stuck the day after the attack on Saigon. Another taken of one of my army majors in a street about a mile from the Boa where they caught about 10 dogs trying to get into another Boa. A number of MPs were killed here about 10 hours before the picture was taken. Not bloody MP patch in foreground and bullet holes in house. 31029

JX2145  P.3  Lowrin