30 AUGUST -- USN material support of the Ferro-Cement project continues at 100% while the quality of workmanship continues to decline at a rapid rate. At the VNNSY a detailed inspection and comparison conducted on 30 August disclosed the following:

a. Crumbling of cement work on underside of main deck areas - believed due to lack of proper curing and cement mixing.

b. Excessive cracking - believed due to lack of proper curing.

c. Lack of application of cement in hard-to-get-to areas including nearly all corner regions-particularly on the underside of the main deck where deck meets the side of the ship. This is due to poor workmanship.

d. Failure to employ doweling techniques where hull penetrations are required. Instead, holes are pounded out, resulting in numerous cracks and unnecessary stresses in the vicinity of all fixtures.
e. Careless and inadequate installation of deck fixtures with improper backing and reinforcement.

f. General sloppy application of cement with large areas of excessive "dimpling" revealing chicken wire pattern. This indicates inadequate packing of the cement and too thin application.

The above discrepancies result in a craft that is structurally unsound and weak and excessively susceptible to shock and vibration deterioration. Recently, Coastal Raider craft under repair at Da Nang were noted to have numerous deck fittings pulled completely out of the deck.

All of the above will be the subject of appropriate communication with the Shipyard Director.
