GENERAL

The level of enemy activity fluctuated during the month of January. Characteristic enemy action included: attacks by fire, attempts to interdict lines of communications, sapper attacks, and large-scale infiltration of enemy units into major cities. The enemy activity increased sharply during the early part of the Tet holiday period as attacks were conducted against friendly installations in the central Corps area. In the early part of the month the enemy violated the New Year's standdown period by committing numerous major and minor incidents of terrorism and attacks by fire.

In the Demilitarized Zone region, elements of the enemy units were deployed in the area north of Con Thien and Gio Linh, and in the coastal area northeast of Dong Ha. The enemy forces sustained heavy casualties while conducting reconnaissance and probing actions in the Con Thien and Gio Linh area. The enemy used fire support to reinforce his attacks. Hostile forces located north and south of the Khe Sanh Combat Base continued reconnaissance activity, attacks by fire, and probing actions throughout the month. These activities climaxed on 21 January when the Khe Sanh village and the Huong Hoa District Headquarters were overrun. Enemy activity then declined until 20 January.

The enemy conducted several coordinated small-scale attacks southwest of Da Nang and in the Hoi An area on 3 January in the central I Corps area. On the same day, enemy forces launched a rocket attack on Da Nang Air Base. At the same time, in the Que Son area, elements of the North Vietnamese Army attacked several helicopter landing zones supporting Operation WHEELER/WALLONA. Two of these attacks were supported by 122mm rocket fire. No other significant activity occurred until the Lunar New Year.

Beginning in the early morning hours of 30 January, the enemy launched a series of coordinated attacks against major military installations and population centers.

In the coastal areas of II Corps, friendly units contacted elements of a North Vietnamese Division in Binh Dinh Province. The enemy forces suffered a significant reduction in their combat effectiveness as they experienced substantial losses during simultaneous attacks on principal areas of population throughout the Corps. From 3 to 5 January, Dak To Airfield received three mortar attacks. On 10 January, an estimated enemy battalion, supported by sappers carrying satchel charges, attacked Kontum Airfield. On 11 January, a village northwest of Kontum City was attacked by enemy forces in the area. In central Kontum Province, the enemy ambushed a friendly convoy on Highway 14 during 15 January. On 30 January, the enemy initiated offensive activity in the Kontum City area with attacks by fire and large-scale infiltration into the city. This high level of enemy activity continued throughout the rest of the month.

Friendly forces contacted an estimated enemy battalion northwest of Pleiku City on 1 January; 47 enemy were killed. A 40 vehicle convoy traveling on Highway 19 east of the city was ambushed by enemy forces on 15 January. From 19 to 27 January, enemy units conducted attacks by fire and abortive ground attacks in the Pleiku City and Camp Holloway area. Friendly installations in the Pleiku City area received attacks by fire followed by enemy infiltration into the city on 30 January. By 31 January, the city was again under friendly control.

During the month, the enemy conducted three attacks against friendly installations in the Ban Me Thuot area. On 21 and 24 January, enemy forces attacked friendly hamlets northeast and southeast of Ban Me Thuot. There were 51 friendly killed. Enemy casualties are unknown.

On the coast, heavy contacts were made with enemy elements in Binh Dinh Province. On 30 and 31 January, enemy forces initiated mortar attacks against a landing zone and an ARVN compound at Phu My and an army supply depot in Qui Nhon. On 30 January, enemy units attacked military installations and villages in Minh Hoa and Nha Trang. In the lower half of the Corps area, enemy activity remained at a low level. However, on 31 January when Phan Thiet was attacked by mortar fire and a ground assault, defenders killed 120 enemy.

Enemy activity increased sharply in the III Corps area during the month, especially during the Tet holiday period. The enemy committed 23 major incidents during the 31 December to 2 January New Year's standdown period. The most significant of these was the 2 January attack against positions of the 3rd Brigade, 25th Infantry Division in northeast Tay Ninh Province. The attack was conducted by an estimated Viet Cong Division and resulted in 401 enemy killed. On 31 January, during the Tet holiday period, enemy forces attacked friendly installations in the Bien Hoa and Long Binh area. Other elements of Viet Cong forces conducted attacks in the Saigon and Tan Son Nhat area. The attacks in the Saigon area on 31 January resulted in approximately 700 enemy killed.
In IV Corps, the enemy initiated small-scale attacks on friendly forces during the early part of the month. During the New Year's stand-down period, the enemy committed 14 major and 29 minor incidents. On 4 January, in Dinh Tuong Province, elements of the 7th ARVN Infantry Division captured an enemy soldier, who subsequently led friendly forces to 41 enemy weapons caches. Uncovered in one of the weapons caches were fifty-five 120mm mortar rounds. On 6 January, the enemy conducted minor coordinated attacks in Vinh Hinh Province. On 8 January, enemy coordinated activity was noted in five provinces throughout IV Corps. Operation CORONADO IX, which commenced on 2 November, terminated in Dinh Tuong Province on 17 January. Cumulative results were 259 enemy killed and 59 detainees. Enemy activity subsided after mid-January. Starting again on 29, 30 and 31 January, the enemy conducted widespread attacks against district towns, friendly defensive positions and airfields throughout the Corps area. Preliminary reports indicated 413 enemy soldiers were killed during the three-day period.

In air action over North Vietnam, daily missions were flown by U.S. Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps pilots. They struck major airfields, highway and railroad bridges, railroads, boat yards, and other lines of communication throughout the Hanoi, Haiphong and Panhandle areas of North Vietnam. Monsoon weather continued to be a factor.

U.S. and other Free World Forces curtailed offensive operations at 1800 hours on 29 January in accordance with the planned 36-hour stand-down during the Tet period. Bombing was stopped north of Vinh and south of the I Corps area. The Government of the Republic of Vietnam was forced by enemy actions to cancel the standdown truce at 0930 hours on 30 January. U.S. and other Free World Military Assistance Forces ended their defensive posture after repeated attacks by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces throughout the Republic. However, air strikes north of Vinh in North Vietnam were not resumed until the last day of the month.

There were approximately 15,217 enemy killed during the month of January in the Republic. This is the highest number of enemy reported killed during any one month of this conflict.

There were 1,033 Hoi Chanhns during the month of January (Military 761; Political 255; Other 17). The highest monthly figures during the conflict were in March 1967 with a total of 5,557 Hoi Chanhns (Military 3,552; Political 1,573; Other 432).

U.S., RVNAF and other Free World Military Assistance Forces casualty reports for January totalled 1,996 killed. The breakdown of the Allied killed is: U.S. 821; RVNAF 1,030; and other FWMAF 145.
GROUND OPERATIONS

I CORPS/III MAF

Throughout I Corps during the month, several ground engagements developed while Marine Corps and Army units searched out enemy forces. Action was reported moderate to heavy in the northernmost province of the Republic while the enemy increased their rocket attacks against Marine Corps base areas just below the Demilitarized Zone, concentrating mainly on the Marine combat base at Khe Sanh. As was apparent during the latter part of the old year, the enemy forces began a major build-up in the Khe Sanh area which continued throughout the first month of the new year. Reaction to this build-up was positive and severe, with U.S. Marine Corps, Air Force and Navy aviators directing air strikes onto the enemy positions. Artillery units continued round-the-clock support of the defenders of the combat base.

In Operation WHEELER/WALLOWA during the month, U.S. 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) units from the AMERICAL Division killed 1,425 enemy with the loss of 127 Cav troopers. The operation, being conducted in Quang Tin and Quang Nam Provinces, was supported by 646 direct air support sorties and 93 naval gunfire missions.

The major battle during the month in this operation took place on 3 January. Elements of two North Vietnamese Army regiments attacked two AMERICAL Division positions and suffered heavily in unsuccessful attempts to overrun the U.S. positions. Two hundred and eight-seven North Vietnamese Army soldiers lost their lives in the actions.

After firing intense mortar, recoilless rifle and artillery fire into Landing Zones (LZ's) "Ross" and "Leslie", the NVA units followed the attacks by fire with ground attacks against the perimeters of the fortified LZ's.

At one point the enemy forces penetrated the perimeter at LZ "Leslie", but were driven out by the defenders. The barrels of 105mm howitzers were lowered to the horizontal, and fired high explosive ordnance point-blank into the attacking enemy. Although two other landing zones nearby received mortar attacks, the enemy concentrated his ground attacks on "Ross" and "Leslie".

Throughout the action, the AMERICAL soldiers of the 3rd Brigade, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) defending the landing zones were supported by U.S. Army artillery and helicopter gunships and U.S. Air Force tactical aircraft.

In addition to the 287 killed, the North Vietnamese Army lost 87 individual (rifles, carbines and submachine guns) and 20 crew-served (machine guns, mortars and recoilless rifles) weapons.

The AMERICAL Division units lost 17 soldiers for a kill ratio of 16.9 to 1.

In another action, AMERICAL Division infantrymen killed 147 enemy 21 miles northwest of Tam Ky on 7 January. The companies, supported by artillery and helicopter gunships, engaged an unknown size enemy force. The enemy employed heavy mortar and recoilless rifle fire against the AMERICAL troops.

During the 10-hour battle, 147 enemy were killed, many as a result of supporting arms. Eight U.S. cavalrymen were killed in the action and 44 were wounded and medevaced.

Throughout the remainder of the month, action was reported as moderate in this area.

Enemy action increased sharply throughout the month in Operation SCOTLAND which is being conducted by elements of the 3rd Marine Division. The operation has been underway since 31 October 1967. It was apparent during December that the enemy was massing troops in the Khe Sanh area and the buildup continued during the first month of the new year. During January 382 enemy were reported killed by the Leathernecks. Twenty-eight Marines died in their search and destroy missions and when their combat bases were subjected to enemy fire. The enemy employed heavy rocket and mortar attacks against the combat base at Khe Sanh throughout the month which continued into February. Aviators flew 643 tactical air strikes in support of the SCOTLAND troopers.

In Operation KENTUCKY, Leathernecks from the 3rd Marine Division reported killing 378 enemy during the month at the cost of 30 of their own killed. The ground forces were supported by 323 tactical air sorties throughout the month.
The most significant battle of the month in this operation took place on 18 January. Elements of the 4th Marine Regiment, 3rd Marine Division killed 162 enemy in a six-hour fight just south of the Demilitarized Zone.

At 0945 hours, a company from the 4th Marines on a sweep mission, made contact with an estimated reinforced enemy platoon 3 kilometers northeast of Con Thien (about one and a half miles south of the Demilitarized Zone). The two forces exchanged small arms and automatic weapons fire, while another Marine company which had been in blocking positions maneuvered to reinforce the company in contact. During the action, both companies received enemy artillery fire. Sixty-seven rounds of 100mm artillery fire impacted in their positions.

Artillery and helicopter gunships originally supporting the action had to cease close support for a time due to the close contact established. Three hours later the Marines reported the enemy unit was a reinforced company supported by RPG rocket-grenades and mortars in addition to the artillery.

Both Marine companies in contact continued to press the attack against the enemy force and a platoon from a third company was inserted in a blocking position to the east, while artillery and helicopter gunships resumed their close support.

The enemy began disengagement at approximately 1600 hours and by 1710 the Marine units had established a defensive perimeter for the night.

While killing the 162 enemy, the Marines sustained eight killed and 39 wounded (medevac).

Throughout the month, mortar and rocket attacks continued against the combat base areas in Operation KENTUCKY. Ground action during the latter part of the month decreased slightly and continued at this level into February.

The 1st and 3rd Brigades, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) initiated Operation JEB STUART in southern Quang Tri and northern Thua Thien Provinces on 22 January.

The first significant engagement took place on the day the operation commenced when cavalry elements engaged an enemy force of unknown size 10 kilometers southeast of Quang Tri City. In the ensuing fire fight, 52 enemy were killed. One
U.S. cavalryman was wounded and evacuated during the action.

Quang Tri City came under enemy attack on 31 January and JEB STUART forces reacted. Elements of the 101st Airborne Division, supported by helicopter gunships and aerial artillery, battled elements of the 812th Regiment, 325B North Vietnamese Army Division throughout the afternoon. Results of the action were 32 enemy killed and one detained. Four enemy individual and three crew-served weapons were captured.

In another engagement on 31 January, elements of the 1st Cavalry made contact several times during the early evening with enemy forces west of Hue. The cumulative results of these contacts were 103 enemy killed and eight individual weapons and one B-40 rocket launcher captured. There were no U.S. casualties.

In all, 578 enemy were killed and 15 suspects detained during the month. Twenty-three U.S. soldiers were killed and 144 wounded. Air crews supported the operation with 15 tactical air sorties.

++++++
II CORPS/I FFV:

Action was reported as light to moderate in the Corps area although there were daily engagements. Operations PERSHING and MACARTHUR forces recorded the heaviest action, while other operations continued with light action.

Operation PERSHING forces were active during the month killing 323 enemy in Binh Dinh Province. The U.S. Army's 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) troops conducting the operation lost 12 of their own killed. The operation, which was initiated on 12 February 1967, terminated on 19 January of the new year.

The most significant action during the month was on 2 and 3 January in the Bong Son area. Elements of the 2nd Brigade, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) killed 79 enemy in a two-day battle along the eastern shore of Dam Trao Lake, 20 kilometers southeast of Bong Son.

The engagement began at 1045 hours on 2 January when a company of mechanized infantry sweeping the area engaged an estimated enemy company employing small arms and automatic weapons fire. The U.S. company in contact was reinforced by another company of mechanized infantry and three air cavalry companies. The battle continued throughout the day.

In the afternoon, U.S. Army aerial rocket artillery, helicopter gunships, artillery and U.S. Air Force tactical air strikes supported the ground forces in contact. The enemy broke contact after heavy air and ground strikes were conducted on their positions.

On 3 January, after pre-striking the area, the cavalrymen resumed sweeping the 2 January contact area. The U.S. force met with light and sporadic contact from 1000 to 1130 hours when the enemy broke contact.

Seventy-nine enemy were killed and two suspects detained during the battle. The Cavalrymen also reported 25 individual and seven crew-served weapons captured. U.S. casualties were six killed and 33 wounded.

Action increased within Operation MACARTHUR during the month. Two hundred and thirty-six enemy were killed by units of the U.S. Army's 4th Infantry Division who lost 32 Infantrymen. One thousand and eighty-seven tactical air support sorties were flown in support of the operation being conducted in Kontum, Pleiku and Dariac Provinces.

On 15 January, 13 enemy were killed and four detained in an unsuccessful ambush on a resupply convoy of 40 vehicles.

The abortive attack, involving an unknown size enemy force, occurred on Highway 19E, 40 kilometers west of An Khe. The enemy initiated the attack by employing three command detonated mines, then fired on the convoy using small arms and automatic weapons. The enemy broke contact just before noon after a quick reaction force consisting of cavalry and artillery elements of the 4th Infantry Division was inserted.

U.S. forces sustained 10 wounded. Damage to equipment was termed light. Enemy casualties are unknown.

Two companies from the 1st Brigade, 4th Infantry Division received 75mm recoilless rifle and mortar fire on 20 January shortly after mid-night while occupying field positions 15 kilometers west of Dak To.

The units were mortared again at 0405 hours. Shortly thereafter one of the companies made contact with an unknown size enemy force. Army artillery and Air Force tactical aircraft supported the action and contact was maintained until 1050 hours.

The two companies linked up at that time and the enemy broke contact.

Twenty-one enemy were killed during the early morning battle. U.S. casualties were 23 wounded (medevaced) and three lightly wounded, treated and returned to duty.

The bodies of 12 North Vietnamese Army soldiers were found on 24 January 17 kilometers west of Pleiku City by elements of the U.S. Army's 2nd Brigade, 4th Infantry Division. The bodies were discovered in an area where U.S. forces had contacted an enemy force of unknown size the previous day.

In addition to finding the 12 enemy dead, one suspect was detained by the Infantrymen who also captured the following arms and ammunition: one individual and two crew-served weapons, 25 mines and grenades, 20 rounds of 82mm mortar ammunition, three B-40 rocket rounds, 300-400 rounds of small arms ammunition, and 30 packs.

Action remained light to moderate during the remainder of the month.
On 23 January, elements of the Capital ROK Infantry Division made contact with an enemy force in the vicinity of Phu Cat, 14 miles northwest of Qui Nhon and killed 278 enemy soldiers during the next five days.

Reacting swiftly, the Koreans deployed six companies in an encircling maneuver and trapped the enemy force in their cordon. The Republic of Korea troops were from the 1st Regiment, Capital ROK Infantry Division.

Before nightfall on the 23rd, two platoons from the 1st Battalion 69th Armor, normally attached to the U.S. 4th Infantry Division, had deployed into the cordon from positions along Route 19 to the west. In addition, two platoons of mechanized infantry in armored personnel carriers from the 1st Battalion 50th Infantry, normally attached to the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, deployed into the northwest portion of the cordon from northern Binh Dinh Province.

Gradually tightening the circle through the next five days, the Korean troops fought the enemy during the day and maintained their tight cordon at night preventing the enemy's escape.

The enemy force was identified as at least two companies of the 9th Battalion, 18th Regiment, 3rd North Vietnamese Army Division.

During the engagement, the forces in contact were supported by U.S. Air Force tactical aircraft and U.S. Army helicopter gunships.

While killing the 278 enemy, the Korean forces suffered 11 killed and 25 wounded. The kill ratio for the engagement was 25.3 enemy to 1 Korean. There were no U.S. casualties reported.

In addition, 145 enemy individual and 21 crew-served weapons were captured. Eleven North Vietnamese Army suspects were detained.

Throughout the first half of January, III Corps reported light to moderate action, but enemy action increased sharply as the month neared an end.

On 31 January, Saigon became a battleground for the first time. U.S., ARVN and other Free World Military Assistance Forces fought the enemy in the streets of Saigon and Cholon, and the action continued into the first days of February. Scenes of major action were in the vicinity of Phu Tho race track, Tan Son Nhut Air Force Base, the U.S. Embassy and BOQ 3.

The highest number of enemy killed in the III Corps area during January was reported in Operation YELLOWSTONE. The enemy initiated heavy attacks against base camps of the 25th Infantry Division throughout the month, but failed to achieve a military victory in the area. The month's action can best be described as almost daily moderate contacts. The enemy lost 780 soldiers killed while U.S. losses totalled 73 Infantrymen killed in action.

Four battalions of Main Force Viet Cong failed to overrun a fire support base of the 25th Infantry Division and lost 382 of their number in their effort on 1 January. The Viet Cong launched their attack during the afternoon, hours before the termination of their announced New Year's standdown period.

The attack began with a mortar and rocket-grenade barrage lasting through the afternoon and evening. Then shortly before midnight, still before the end of the truce, two battalions each from the 271st and 272nd Main Force Viet Cong Regiments, launched human wave assaults against the fire support base perimeter.

The defenders from the 3rd Brigade, 25th Infantry Division, repelled the enemy's attacks with small arms, automatic weapons, hand grenades and supporting fire. The tubes of the howitzers were lowered and 105mm rounds were fired directly into the Viet Cong attackers. Additional fire support was provided by U.S. Army helicopter gunships and U.S. Air Force tactical aircraft who bombed and strafed enemy positions and escape routes.

U.S. casualties were 23 killed and 153 wounded. In addition to the 382 enemy killed, they lost 87 individual (rifles, carbines, sub-machineguns) and 29 crew-served weapons (machineguns, mortars, recoilless rifles).

On 5 January, elements of the 1st Brigade, 25th Infantry Division killed 68 enemy during an assault of a contested landing zone. The incident occurred 49 kilometers northeast of Tay Ninh City.

1-2 JANUARY 1968
At 0920 hours, a 1st Brigade company engaged an unknown size enemy force in fortified positions and exchanged small arms and automatic weapons fire. Later in the morning, another company reinforced the unit in contact and engaged an estimated enemy platoon. The engagement lasted until 1523 hours when the enemy broke contact.

Sixty-eight enemy and 10 U.S. soldiers were killed in the action; 10 Infantrymen were wounded (medevaced) and four lightly wounded troopers were treated and returned to duty.

During the day, three UH-1 helicopters were hit by ground fire and downed while supporting the 25th Division operation.

Only light scattered action occurred during the rest of the month.

Elements of the 25th Infantry Division conducting Operation SARATOGA in Hau Nghia Province reported light to moderate contacts with the hostile forces throughout the month. Three hundred and seventy-five enemy were killed by the U.S. forces at a cost of 44 Infantrymen killed. Two hundred and thirty-four tactical air sorties were flown in support of the operation during the month.

Early on the morning of 10 January, 103 enemy were killed by an element of the 2nd Brigade, 25th Infantry Division. The Viet Cong were killed during an abortive attempt to overrun a battalion command post 39 kilometers northwest of Saigon.

At 0200 hours, an estimated battalion of Viet Cong launched an attack against the command post's perimeter, employing mortar and rocket-grenade fire in support of the attacking force. An Air Force AC-47 "Dragonship" supported the U.S. Forces with flares and minigun fire. Army artillery elements also fired in support of the command post, firing directly into the attacking enemy. The enemy broke contact and withdrew at 0520 hours.

In addition to killing the 103 Viet Cong, the Infantrymen detained two suspects and captured 10 crew-served and 11 individual weapons. Five U.S. soldiers were killed and 28 wounded (medevaced).

During a two-hour battle, some 23 miles northwest of Saigon, units of the 25th Infantry Division made contact with an unknown size enemy force and killed 63, on 22 January. U.S. casualties were one killed and eight wounded (medevaced).

Operation LAM SON 67 terminated on the last day of January. During the month, the 1st Infantry Division forces reported killing 1,444 enemy in Binh Duong and Bien Hoa Provinces. Action in the area was characterized by light to moderate engagements.

The final results for the operation, which was initiated on 8 February 1967, were 283 enemy killed and 2,204 detained. U.S. casualties were 59 killed and 576 wounded.

Operation COBURG was initiated on 23 January and carried over into the month of February. During the last nine days of January, elements of the 1st Australian Task Force operating in Phuoc Tuy Province reported killing 169 enemy soldiers. In the same period, 11 of the Free World Military Assistance Forces troops were killed. The operation received support of 91 tactical air sorties.

Action during the month was recorded as light to moderate with the heaviest fighting during the Tet offensive.
IV CORPS AREA

Light and widely scattered actions best characterizes the contacts made with the enemy in IV Corps. Records contain no significant action for the month, except during Tet.

Operation COHONADO IX terminated on 17 January with a final result of 259 enemy killed and two U.S. Infantrymen killed. As CORONADO IX came to a close, Operation CORONADO X was initiated.

During the month, 90 enemy were killed during both of the operations.

On 29, 30 and 31 January, the enemy forces conducted a series of wide-spread attacks on military installations throughout the IV Corps area. Reports show that 413 enemy were killed by Allied forces during the three-day period.
AIR OPERATIONS

AIR NORTH

Major railroad yards, bridges, airfields, storage areas and lines of communication continued as targets throughout the month in North Vietnam. U.S. Air Force, Marine Corps and Navy pilots were limited to the Panhandle much of the time due to poor weather conditions. Many strikes employed radar bombing techniques.

During the month, Air Force pilots flew 1,206 missions over North Vietnam, Marine pilots flew 834, and Navy pilots logged another 741 for a total of 2,781 missions during January.

Air Force pilots downed two MiG-17s in the vicinity of Hanoi on 3 January. Other Air Force pilots struck the Trung Quan railroad yard 11 kilometers northeast of Hanoi and attacked the runway at Kep airfield 95 kilometers east-northeast of the capital city. The following day Ha Gia railroad and bypass bridge 32 kilometers north of Hanoi and the Lang Son railroad and highway bridge 128 kilometers northeast of the city were struck.

Air Force pilots bombed the Lang Son railroad bridge located 131 kilometers northeast of Hanoi, on 5 January. Other pilots reported cratering Kep airfield 60 kilometers northeast of the capital city. Pilots returned to strike Kep airfield on 7 January, but weather prevented the bomb damage assessment.

On 16 January, Air Force pilots flew 38 missions over the North and reported destroying one mile of railroad track on the No Trang railroad 62 kilometers north-northeast of Hanoi and hitting the Som Bai barracks 69 kilometers west-northwest of Hanoi.

Strikes were limited to the Panhandle on 17 January.

A 50-truck convoy was heavily damaged by Air Force pilots, along with 10-15 railroad cars 15-56 kilometers north-northeast of Thanh Hoa on 19 January.
Air Force pilots hit Hoa Lac airfield 32 kilometers west of Hanoi. They also dropped two spans of a highway bridge six kilometers south of Dong Hoi on 27 January.

Seventeen military structures and 18 barges were destroyed by Phantom crews in an area 16-68 kilometers southeast of Dong Hoi on 27 January.

Marine Corps aviators struck the Hoa Binh army barracks 48 kilometers southwest of Hanoi on 3 January. The following day, the Marines hit the Xinh Yen army barracks and the Vinh cave storage area. They also reported secondary explosions at the Som Tra railroad yard 131 kilometers northwest of Hanoi.

Two secondary explosions were set off by Marine Corps pilots at the Cat Bi airfield five kilometers southeast of Haiphong on 8 January.

Phu Ly bypass bridge and a railroad yard 130 kilometers northwest of Hanoi were targets on 11 January. On 12 January, Marine Corps pilots hit Co Trai railroad and highway bridge 32 kilometers south of Hanoi, Hoa Binh military installation 50 kilometers southwest of Hanoi and My Trach highway ferry 19 kilometers south of Thanh Hoa.

On 17 January, Marine pilots bombed Hon Gai ferry complex 32 kilometers northeast of Haiphong and a railroad yard 30 kilometers south of Hanoi.

Navy aviators destroyed or damaged over 80 railroad cars, 70 watercraft and 30 trucks, dropped two spans of a railroad bridge and damaged four other bridges on 2 January. The following day, the air crews scored two direct hits on the Hai Duong railroad and highway bridge 34 kilometers west-northwest of Haiphong and damaged the Kien An highway bridge three kilometers southwest of Haiphong.

Direct hits were reported on the Yen Ha transshipment point 53 kilometers northeast of Thanh Hoa on 4 January. The same day, other pilots hit the Hanoi railroad and highway bridge five kilometers north of Hanoi, the Phu Thi ferry 19 kilometers south-southeast of Hanoi and destroyed the Haiphong highway bypass bridge ferry.
Numerous secondary explosions were reported as Navy aviators hit the Thanh Hoa transshipment point and the Thanh Hoa railroad yard three kilometers southwest of the city on 5 January. Four locomotives, 34 railroad cars and 36 watercraft near Thanh Hoa were destroyed or damaged the following day by other Navy fliers.

On 9 January, pilots reported cratering the runway at Hai­phong’s Cat Bi airfield.

Cam Pha mining region 48 kilometers east-northeast of Hai­phong was the target for Navy pilots on 11 January.

On 15 January, Navy pilots hit Nam Dinh railroad yard, Dong Phuong Thuong railroad siding and the Chau Cau barracks area. No bomb damage assessment was reported. The next day, pilots reported dropping the Thuc Hoa highway-bypass bridges 77 kilometers south-southwest of Haiaphong and hitting the Da Chong barge repair facility 61 kilometers east-northeast of the same city.
